The Benefits of Intra-Op Monitoring Services, LLC

The American Academy of Neurology has recognized Intraoperative Neurophysiological Monitoring (IONM) as an effective and essential element for preventing complications and identifying neural structures during complex surgical procedures. IONM has been proven to reduce the incidence of surgically induced neurological deficits by over 50% and greatly improve surgical outcomes.

- Reduces the risk of catastrophic neurological deficits
- Reduces the risk of frivolous litigation
- Helps calm patient's fears of the surgical procedures
- Reduces long-term health care cost by reducing neurological deficits
- Improves surgical outcomes
- Provides peace of mind that neural integrity has remained intact during critical portions of difficult procedures
- Provides early warning of compromised neural status; this ensures corrections can be made before neurological impairment becomes permanent
- Allows for the completion of aggressive surgeries with improved safety

All Monitoring Companies Are Not Equal

Intra-Op Monitoring Services provides hospitals and surgical facilities access to state-of-the-art equipment, skilled monitoring professionals and the experience necessary to make neurophysiological monitoring a valuable and relatively inexpensive component of surgery.
